

What is & is not accepted for resale...

The Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA) is a sweeping new law that impacts a broad spectrum of our economy. CPSIA was effective February 10, 2009. In general, CPSIA is designed to keep our children safe from high levels of lead, & other hazards from everyday items. The main body of the law applies to manufacturers & required lead testing, but it does have an impact on resellers – even us consignors! As a result, GFWC OJWC will be much stricter on what we will & will not accept for the sale.

Below is a table based on information from the US Consumer Product Safety Commission, which addresses what will & will not accept

Recalled Products	UNACCEPTABLE: It is illegal to sell ANY recalled product (for adults as well as children). Please check the CPSC Web site (www.cpsc.gov) for dangerous recalled products including cribs, play yards, strollers, high chairs, toys with magnets, toys that are choking hazards, and other products.
Books – “ordinary” children’s titles e.g. paperbacks and hardbacks	ACCEPTABLE, if printed after 1985
Cheap children’s metal jewelry	UNACCEPTABLE
Unpainted/untreated wood toys	ACCEPTABLE
Painted wooden or metal toys	UNACCEPTABLE
Toys with soft plastic that are made for infants	UNACCEPTABLE (these products are subject to the new regulations, and will be acceptable in the future, if produced after February 10, 2009 – however given the close proximity in dates, we will not accept them for this year’s sale.)
Dyed or undyed children’s clothing made from natural, untreated cotton, silk, wool, hemp, flax, linen, and other untreated natural materials including coral, amber, feathers, fur and leather	ACCEPTABLE
Clothes with rhinestones, metal or vinyl snaps, zippers, closures or appliques.	ACCEPTABLE, however please use your best judgment on these for choking hazards, etc. We will be doing the same as we place these items for sale.
Surgical steel; precious metals such as gold (at least 10 karat) and sterling silver (at least 925/1000); precious and semiprecious gemstones (excluding a list of stones that are associated in nature with lead); natural or cultured pearls	ACCEPTABLE
Toys that are easily breakable into small parts including dolls and stuffed toys that have eyes, noses or other small parts that are not securely fastened	UNACCEPTABLE could present a choking hazard

The above information is not presented to “scare” or discourage you from consigning, but rather to inform you of this new regulation & its impact on re-sellers. We want to make sure you are informed! Additional information on the law can be found at <http://www.cpsc.gov/ABOUT/Cpsia/cpsia.html>

Acceptance of items is the sole discretion of GFWC OJWC. If your items are not of the preferred quality or CPSIA guidelines, they will not be sold.

Until more is known about this new law, if you are unsure if your item meets the guidelines, do not bring it!
